

FIRST EXCHANGE BANK

Fairmont, West Virginia

First Exchange Bank opened the doors of the bank's new headquarters in White Hall, located at the corner of U.S. 250 and NASA Boulevard. This building will serve as the new central office, moving from Mannington. The new location was chosen based on access to I-79 with hopes of growth for the company and the community of Fairmont. The new branch features innovations including safety deposit boxes that require a handprint signature and drive-through kiosks, allowing larger vehicles to pass. The new bank headquarters is one of several investments that outside companies have made in the area with construction happening alongside the Middletown Commons, an extension of High Technology park.
